Renowned literacy presenter, Dr. Kate Kinsella develops custom coursework for employed K-12 educators in San Francisco State University's Center for Teacher Efficacy. Her extensive national consultancy, training, and publications focus upon improving achievement of less proficient readers and immigrant youth. She provides guidance to state departments and districts on evidence-based instructional practices to promote English learner gains in states as varied as New York, Arizona, California and Texas. A teacher's teacher, Dr. Kinsella has maintained active classroom involvement by teaching high school English Learners in her University's Step to College Program and providing regular in-class coaching and model lessons. Her areas of particular professional interest are academic oral language, vocabulary, reading and writing development for career and college readiness.

Dr. Kinsella's presentation titled Developing Mastery of High-Utility Academic Vocabulary for Common Core Competencies will focus on the K-12 Language Arts Common Core State Standards.
